When a new musical revue has its American premiere in West Palm Beach and is produced by the folks who brought us Menopause: The Musical, you have to wonder what is wrong with it. But it turns out to be an enjoyably tongue-in-cheek stroll through the song hits of such '60s British birds as Petula Clark, Dusty Springfield and LuLu, all warbled by a quintet of faux-English performers in what-were-we-thinking-of fashions of the period.

With its frug and punch line delivery, the show will remind those who actually go back to the '60s of Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In. Look closely and there are a few digs at the pre-women's liberation days. Or you could just sit back and sway along with the show's kicky nostalgic sounds.
